The Popular booth at Visalia fair attracted considerable attention. It is one of its most noteworthy features. The canned fruits and vegetables are very attractive, two large jars of white peaches put up by A. J. Clugnet of Sacramento calling forth especial comment. Among other notable features are Mrs. W. A. Farrer, and an amusing discussion as to whether men or women are the better sex, followed by several talks to show the boasted smartness of each group. As the men in the company were outnumbered by the women it was rather difficult to decide which won. Refreshments, consisting of cake, wafers and hot chocolate and games completed a pleasant evening.

In the course of Mr. Farrer's talk, he mentioned the fact that Watsonville apple growers had made an offer of Watsonville apples at wholesale if the Grange and the Fruit Threshers could arrange to handle them in wholesale lots. Mr. Farrer said that the Grange was in correspondence with the growers to learn the exact terms.

ELECT HARDING

The well being of the people of the United States, confronted as they are with the problem of selecting a President at the polls November 2, calls for the election of Warren G. Harding.

Day by day, as the campaign has advanced, the situation created by the action of the two conventions, has become clearer. Presidents are not made by the decision of conventions; they are not made at the general elections; they are selected by the slowly maturing judgment of the people in the five months between. The conventions offer four or five candidates; the people pick them over; the decision on November 2 simply records the result of five months' debate and thought.

The process of selection this year has involved many considerations, but they all point finally to the Harding conclusion. The league of nations, the enforcement of prohibition, business and trade policies of the government, the personal qualifications of the candidates, and perhaps most important of all, their personal policy toward the administration that now dominates Washington, spell Harding, and not Cox.

Cox is for taking the League of Nations as it is handed to him by Wilson; Harding is for forming, with any material at hand, such a league of nations as will fit to American demands and to world peace and prosperity.

Cox and Harding are equally for law enforcement. But Cox would enter office with backers that press him to weaken the Volstead law by congressional changes, while Harding is grouped with political associates who will neither expect nor tolerate any backsliding on prohibition.

Cox stands for what has been Democratic and Harding for what has been Republican in methods of government administration, of trade promotion, of political efficiency and handling of the people's business. Republican administrators have worked for all the interests of every section of the nation. Democratic administrations have talked of helping every section and have tangled up themselves in a maze of inefficiency without helping anyone but their personal and "deserving" friends.

Cox charges that Harding is backed by Lodge, Borah, Johnson, McCormick and the Senate cabal. After all, this is but saying that his political association will be with men of high enough type to be elected to the Senate by their fellow citizens after years of public and self-sacrificing service. On the other hand Cox is backed by Murphy of Tammany, Nugent of New Jersey, Taggart of Indiana, Brennan of Illinois—men who have not earned public confidence as evidenced by official service, but who do the small work of party organization and so obtain power in conventions. These are the political forces on whom Cox depends for election. It was the general admission in the Democratic convention that the only man who could win for the Democrats was Cox and he could win only because he had the Solid South to add to the big wet cities. This is Cox in the setting of his political associates, and Harding in his.

The country will feel confident that, to whatever extent it is obvious that political contacts are advisable, Senator Harding will have the advice and support of men of worth and the cooperation in his cabinet and elsewhere of worthy men. They are not secure, by any means, of Cox.

The main issue, after all is the issue created by the Wilson administration and the position of Cox that he will continue it. The people of the United States do not want it continued. Mr. Cox has said that he is not "Wilson," but has done nothing to confirm that statement. He has said he would make some changes in the League of Nations, covenant, but also has indicated that these changes would be as trifling as those Mr. Wilson would consent to. Mr. Cox as President, we have reason to believe, would have the political drawbacks of the Wilson administration where he did not have those of Tammany. We cannot afford to face for another four years, the failure to coordinate, to conserve, to cooperate, to take advantage of the human forces that are available for the use of the Presidency, as Mr. Wilson has refused to make use of them. We do not want pretty men in cabinet positions. We do not want big men, like Franklin Lane, put in office and then side-tracked so that they are powerless to accomplish anything. Mr. Harding's spirit of human cooperation will be one of his finest assets, as chief executive of the United States.

The Republican feels that this is the proper time for it to voice its conviction that Mr. Harding should be elected President. We have confidence that his administration will forcefully carry on the demands made upon it for execution of the laws, the initiation of new policies, and cooperating with the rest of the world and yet maintaining the rights and dignities of the American people.

OFF THE MAP

The British coal strike may have a very serious effect upon the Sinn Fein campaign in Ireland. It will not, to be sure, lessen the factional differences in the island. It will not heal the old scores, nor abate the effect of British military control over a dissatisfied people. But it will, for a time at least, check the attention that the world is giving to Ireland and to that degree it will check the efforts that are made by the Sinn Fein propagandists to create an artificial interest in the struggle. As the Sinn Feiners are working for the support from public opinion in their own island and in the United States, so they are also hoping that it will have its effect in England itself. Not that they expect any active help from Englishmen, no matter how sympathetic. But they think that an increase in the dull resentment to the policy of the government will be helpful to Sinn Fein and may finally force out of office Lloyd-George; who has been their most powerful foe.

The coal strike has created a new situation, one that may remove the prime minister from power, but not on the Irish question. And if Lloyd-George wins against the strike, and there is no indication that the mass of English people sympathize with the strikers, his hand will be so much the stronger in the "war" against Sinn Fein.

A great part of the work of the Sinn Fein movement threatens to be lost. Public opinion has difficulty in functioning over more than one thought at a time. And the coal strike is the biggest thing, just now, in the British Isles.

OF THE PASSING SHOW

Historians some day may have a chapter on the "Rise and Fall of Charley Chaplin," only one of the interesting and delectable features of which will be the story of his present shaking the dust of Hollywood and the United States from his feet. The chapter may be moralizing about the folly of persons that would ever look at such things as made Charley Chaplin a household word for a few years. Or perhaps, the disappearance of this film notable may be so complete that even the historians may have forgotten him in another decade.

—We think not; in fact we hope not. For there has been something to Charley Chaplin that we need not be ashamed of, and we think that this portion of his character, as we have seen it on the screen, has had a vital part in the place he has had, even though brief, in the public mind. Chaplin has been an actor, or rather he has been a comedian in the more vivid and the more human sense that makes comedy one of the fine arts. It has been unfortunate for him and for us as well, that he has not been able to grow, to make something of his talents that would last as long as he was a vigorous man, able to weave more and more of his art into the lives of those he had touched. That he could not has been in spite of rather than because of his art.

A forceful thing about comedy is that it gradually grows out of itself into serious drama. Chaplin has chosen not to let himself grow. Possibly he will reappear, gain, on a higher plane, with a more extensive outlook on his own capabilities. But it looks as though he were satisfied to be of the passing show.

MUNICIPAL MUSIC

While we are talking about our new city charter proposal and about what our municipal administration should do about various business needs of the city, don't forget that the city, under this or any charter should have an interest in the lighter side of life, the public entertainment of its own people. There are many legitimate things that a city can do, that no private institution, no matter how well intentioned, can afford to do. We have good theaters, and are to have, we understand, more of them. We have band concerts in the summer, at public expense. But these things are not enough. We should have forms of musical and dramatic entertainment that only a city itself can undertake to finance and for which the city can stand guarantor.

This demand has existed for years. It has never been satisfied. Interest in it should be keen enough so that if the fault lies in the lack of power in the present government, this will be corrected under the city management as it is to be conducted under the new charter.

There is no reason why we should not have municipal music throughout the year, in the open air in summer, in some public building in the cold and rainy seasons. If the Auditorium is not suitable, let us admit the fact, and acquire a place that is fitted. There are too many things allowed to stand in the way of what, especially in California should be a regular public function.

Forty Years Ago Today

Mr. Brownstone will soon commence a fine residence immediately south of Judge Hill's property, corner of Kern and E. Main of the Central Colony. Has made 170 gallons of excellent sherry wine this season. It was manufactured from one-year-old vines.

Mr. Greenup will put a second story on his building and thereby add a commodious hall for public gatherings. It will be 7x28 feet with 13 ft. ceiling.

The Fresno Flouring Mill is turning out as fine a quality of flour as any imported. The new putting process invented by Mr. Stokes, the manager, has proved an entire success.

Twenty Years Ago Today

The county hospital was burned to the ground last night. Supervisor Phil Scott estimated that it would cost $20,000 to replace the buildings; the insurance was $27,000. Castle Brothers' packing house at Del Rey is destroyed by fire. The loss is estimated at nearly $50,000.

Frank Chance, the "Crutch" baseball catcher, returned on Tuesday from the East and has since been kept busy shaking hands with his countless friends and admirers.

Ten Years Ago Today

The California Synod of the Presbyterian church met in Fresno. The state of Nevada is included in this synod as a presbytery. Dr. John T. Willis of Sacramento is the moderator.

Save Forests; Grow More

Preservation of America's forests by replanting and more rigid protection against devastating fire is contemplated in a bill to be presented to Congress in December by industries using timber resources. In conjunction with representatives of the United States Forest Service they tentatively drafted it at New York last week. It provides several modifications to existing forestry legislation.

The bill would create an appropriation to combat forest fires and stimulate reforestation. It contemplates cooperation with the states in protecting timber land. Government acquisition of more forests and investigation of the extent of the existing timber supply and how long it will meet demands upon it also are provided.

State foresters will confer at New York, October 21, to consider state legislation on the same general program and the subject later will be taken up at a convention of the American Forestry and Lumber Association in Chicago, November 10 and 12.

—Eugene Cullen in The New Republic.

Consumption of the resources of Soviet Russia and exhaustion of the patience of its people give promise of enough internationalism to make the position of General Wrangel, anti-bolshevik leader, most favorable, according to a report received in official circles at Washington.

WHEN WILL INTEREST RATES ON BONDS FALL?

Not a little public work is being held up because bond interest rates are regarded as being abnormally high. We wonder how many people know that interest rates on bonds sold at par rose for eight years after our Civil War ended, although they were very high in 1862. In "A Century of Prices," by Burton and Selden, there are several charts showing "bond yields" and "commercial paper interest rates" for every year since 1860. "Corporation" bond yields, ranged from 5.5 to 7.5 per cent in 1865, and from 7.5 to 8.1 per cent in 1873, the rise having been quite uniform during those years. Following the panic of 1873 came a fall in bond yields, but the fall was relatively slow; the low point being reached in 1901, when bond yields fell 3.7 to 4.8 per cent.

It is noteworthy that bond yields have moved in sympathy with commercial paper rates generally following the latter with a lag of two to eight years. This being so, it is probable that bond yields will continue to rise for several years. Therefore it will be futile to postpone public works in the hope that bonds can be marketed at higher prices than they now bring.

The main reason why bond yields vary with commercial paper rates has never been correctly given, we think. It is this: As commodity prices rise or fall, the market value of fixed property (land, logs, plant, etc.), rises or falls. The owners of bonds or other mortgages seek to share in the gain that occurs when property values rise, and they do so by selling their bonds or mortgages at a premium. This depresses the price of bonds or mortgages, which is equivalent to increasing their "yield." The converse happens when commodity prices fall, for then it pays to sell stocks and buy bonds.

In addition to this phenomenon there is another during and following a war, namely, the issue of large amounts of government bonds, which serves to depress the price of all bonds by increasing the supply offered for sale. Following the close of the war, commercial undertakers to float bonds and notes that were deferred during the war, and thus prolonging the period of high interest rates.

The world was not only caused our government to issue more than $20,000,000,000 worth of bonds, but led foreign governments to float loans in America. Foreign governments owe the American government $2,000,000,000, which they will try to make up by the sale of bonds to the American people. France has just sold at par in America $100,000,000 of 8 per cent bonds. This is probably a forerunner of many another similar sale of foreign bonds. The inevitable result will be to depress the price of all bonds.

That is, to raise the interest rate of bonds marketed at par.

The following table shows what has happened to bond yields since 1860:

Year	1860	1870	1880	1890	1900	1910	1920
Municipals	7.5	6.5	5.5	4.5	4.0	3.5	3.0
Yields	7.5	6.5	5.5	4.5	4.0	3.5	3.0
Commercial	7.5	6.5	5.5	4.5	4.0	3.5	3.0
Industrial	7.5	6.5	5.5	4.5	4.0	3.5	3.0

The above percentages are averages for each of the three years, as given in the September letter of the National City Bank of New York.

The yield of British consols has followed the curve of British commodity prices for the last 150 years, and with such remarkable coincidence that there can be no doubt as to the fact that the explanation above given as to the cause of bond yield changes.

As typical of much of the false economic reasoning that is current, we note the following from an editorial article in the Iron Age of August 5:

"Apart from the deterrent of building costs being high, there is the influence that interest rates are high. A period of over-construction is always marked by low interest rates, according to those who hold to the doctrine that an excess of permanent construction brings about an industrial depression. Lately interest rates have been high on account of alleged 'new conditions,' but that as everything else has gone up, so interest rates must advance also. By this reasoning the present interest rates might be held to be too low compared with what is coming. There is a fundamental fallacy in that whole argument about interest rates, however, the fallacy being that rates, per cent are compared with commodity prices and wages rates expressed in dollars. The things are not comparable."

Had the writer of the article just quoted taken the pains to study the curves of commodity index prices and of bond yield rates he would never have said, "The things are not comparable. He would have seen that the two curves move up and down in a harmony that makes it certain that commodity prices and bond interest rates are functionally related."

It is unfortunate that so many editorial expressions of opinion on economic matters are coming from editors who do not take the time to study the available data that would show whether their opinions are true or erroneous.

THAT MORN.

All the anguish and the ache,
Your heart-break and my heart-break,
Melted like a morning mist
That May morn we clasped and kissed.

Life is tragic, life is sweet,
(Lo, the flowers at your feet);
Love is terrible—and dear;
(Joy and sorrow brought us here).

More Truth Than Poetry
By James J. Montague

THE SOONER THE BETTER

When'er I hear a bachelor
Of thirty or above,
Express his utter loathing for
The malady called love,
And vow with an expression grim
That not a Jane extant
Can throw the halter over him,
I say, "The deuce she can't."

A kid of twenty-two can flirt
And run away again,
He's half in love with every skirt
That sweeps into his ken.
But just as he begins to sigh
For Gladys or for Rose,
Comes Ananias dancing by,
And off for her he goes.

But on attaining thirty years,
He well may take alarm
When a pretty girl appears
And puts him on the arm:
For if she's marked him for her own,
Though she be fat or slim,
In vain it is to write or moan,
The jig is up for him.

Best fall in love at twenty-two
When you can pick and choose,
And when it matters not to you
If you should win or lose.
For after thirty you will fall
For some determined dame
And though she's not your choice at all,
She'll get you, just the same.

THE LITTLE HOUSES.

I love the little houses.
On a newly opened street,
Where rosy wives with a child or two
(Their homing husbands greet.
Where boys are in the new front steps
And a baby cart chokes the hall,
Where velocipedes are the only curs,
And little birds the children call.
The little house is a house of hope
And of love and faith also.
There's a busy hum in it all day long,
And the hours like moments go.

The stately house has all achieved,
It is dull and weary too,
But the little house is aglow with dreams

GAMBLERS TAKE $3000 FROM MAN

Victim Claims to Have Been Given Doped Cigarettes

Four arrests were made by the police yesterday, after Bill Tibbitts told Chief Trux of the loss of $3,000 in a gambling game Saturday evening. Tibbitts claims to have been duped out of this sum of money after being given doped cigarettes, supposed to have contained "marajuana."

The man's brother, H. Tibbitts, swore to a complaint charging Paul Peterson, George Garabedian and G. Minusian with gambling. Tibbitts was arrested by Corporal Bayre during the day and was released on $300 cash bail each.

According to the police, Tibbitts had been given the money to make a transaction Saturday afternoon. Before he was able to complete it, he met the trio and other unnamed men and was induced to join an "easy" game. He claims, according to the police, to have been given cigarettes and shortly after noticed his suitcase becoming full.

Although remembering the incidents of the game but faintly, he recalls being induced to wear large sums of money, he told the police. When the game ended, his entire sum of money, $3,000 in all, was found to be gone. The game is said to have been conducted at a house on N street.

Tibbitts was arrested and charged with gambling. He was released on $100 bail. The man lives with his relatives at 261 Coast avenue.

AMENDMENTS BEFORE LABOR

Riverbank Meeting to Allow Discussion Be- fore Election

RIVERBANK, Oct. 18.—A meeting will be held here at which speakers will address members of the various labor unions on the various amendments to be voted on at the coming election. The speakers will talk from a non-partisan standpoint and will include in their address some of the various viewpoints of the two dominant party candidates for president.

Several parties of home owners have been here recently and among the sales reported are the Merrill property in West Riverbank, the McDonald store building on Third street and the ten-acre fruit ranch of G. C. Samsell on Santa Fe avenue.

C. C. Flores, manager of a general store here, has tendered his resignation and will leave for Mexico as soon as relieved. Mr. Flores has an estate in Mexico valued at $250,000 which the Carranzas forced him to abandon and which he has been unable to recover since.

He is a personal friend of the newly elected President Garza and says the new government will fully protect the rights of Americans.

W. H. Tuller, of the Santa Fe hotel, leaves this week for Jackson, Mississippi, to receive his share of an estate recently settled. He will be gone about three weeks and on his return expects to invest in the fruit business in this vicinity.

September Production of Oil Sets New State Record

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 18.—September production of all companies in California of 864,310 barrels per day establishes a record figure for the state. Daily production of 302,469 barrels in June, 1914, was the highest figure previously recorded. The increase of 557,841 barrels daily as compared with August production, is mainly due to new production in the Elk Hills.

September shipments were 233,522 barrels per day, a decrease of 822 barrels daily as compared with August. Stocks were decreased 210,807 barrels during the month.

Fifty-five new wells were completed during September, with an initial daily production of 21,778 barrels.

Why Teeth Stain

You leave a film-coat on them

Most teeth are dimmed more or less by a film. Smokers' teeth often become darkly coated. That film makes teeth look dingy, and most tooth troubles are now traced to it.

Millions now combat that film in a new, scientific way. This is to offer a test to you, to show the unique results.

You must end film

The film is viscous—you can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Ordinary brushing methods leave much of this film intact. So millions find that well-brushed teeth discolor and decay. You must attack film in a better way, else you will suffer from it.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

BORTON CHARGE IS DENIED BY WITNESSES

Grand Jury Begins Its Probe Into Borton's Allegations

Woman Is Called as a Witness Before the Grand Jury

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—General denial of knowledge of alleged "crookedness" in games played in the 1919 season in the Pacific Coast Baseball League was made today by a number of witnesses who testified before the Los Angeles county grand jury, which is conducting an inquiry into allegations of "fixing" games.

Borton was the first to be questioned by the jury. He was asked to repeat his previous assertions that he and other members of the 1919 team had been paid to throw games.

Many Are Witnesses. Other witnesses included Walter McClellan, manager of the Portland team; Del Baker and Art Koehler, Portland players; Hugh "Stubby" Bunting, Los Angeles player; Lou Anzer, motion picture producer, who was associated with Borton; "Fatty" Arbuckle, who was the latter's partner in the "Fatty" film company; and other witnesses.

It was said that Borton had been charged with a number of other witnesses to appear before the grand jury. The new witnesses, it was stated, would include more players and several business men.

FIXED GAME IS PROBE SUBJECT

Cook County Jury to Get More Evidence on 1919 Series

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—The Cook county grand jury investigating the baseball scandal does not expect further testimony implicating major league players in gambling and game "fixing." But it will devote the future sessions to procuring evidence against the men who are alleged to have "fixed" the 1919 world series by bribing Chicago American league players to lose games to the Cincinnati National League team, according to a statement tonight by Harry Replogle, prosecutor in charge of the inquiry.

Further indictments might be voted against major league players, however, on the strength of evidence already received, Mr. Replogle said, but the jury plans to devote tomorrow almost exclusively into the ramifications of an alleged gambling ring which sought control of the annual championship series. The jury also will look into baseball pools.

Seventeen witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear tomorrow including Arnold Rothstein of New York, Abe Attell, former featherweight boxing champion, three Big League men, John Johnson, John Hayler and other major league officials. It is believed however that neither Rothstein or Attell will appear.

1919 Tail-Enders Come to Second Place in 1920 Season

KERN HUNTERS GO UNREWARDED

Little Water in Canals and Fields Around Duck Haunts

BANKERSFIELD, Oct. 18.—N. Brooks who have been waiting since last winter for a crack at the wild ducks, played in hard luck yesterday. The day was warm and clear, and there was very little water in the canals and fields, and hunters who relied on the usual haunts of ducks and geese were disappointed. Miller and the Ten Section field along the Taff road had few shots at the flying birds.

A large number of West Side hunters were out of Lake Ruess Vista or on its shores, and they are said to have enjoyed better luck than the lake-side hunters.

The gun club members of the Butte-willow and Goose Lake territory were out in force Sunday.

The general opinion is that hunting will be better after the fall rains, and especially after the heavy fog come in from the marshes.

There are myriads of ducks and geese in the lake region, but they are feeding at long range from the hunters.

Greetings, Pete!

Here I am tonight in Winston-Salem where more tobacco is manufactured than in any other place on the face of the earth! And, W-S is some speed city, as well as the largest in North Carolina! They're rushing up a million dollar hotel, got a corking league ball team, regular skyscraper buildings and as much action as you look for in New York!

When I knocked off for the day, I buzzed around like a hungry bee in a buckwheat field—up and down long streets of R.S. Reynolds Tobacco Co. factories!

As the Reynolds enterprise proved out more and more gigantic and I talked with more men about it, I got the real and true answer as to why Camels are so good and so entirely different from any other cigarette! I'll spin it for you, old top—listen—

Every man I talked with made the one big point that the officials and the more than 350 Reynolds foremen have an intimate knowledge of the tobacco business; that (pulling it into a North Carolina expression) they were virtually born and raised in a tobacco patch; that they knew tobacco; how to grade it; blend it and how to manufacture and sell it!

And what's most important of all, Pete, these Reynolds folks sure give men what they want—the best that can be produced! Well, Peter, it took months to perfect Camels Turkish and Domestic blends—and that refreshing flavor—and wonderful mild, mellow body—before a single Camel cigarette was sold! Guess that will repay your interest, old liberty bond!

Tomorrow, I'm going to meet some of the Reynolds folks. Got to see inside of those factories!

And, you know me!!

Shorty.

TRIBUTE PAID TO C. H. ROWELL

Editorial Appears in "Arar," Local Semi-Weekly Paper

An editorial tribute to Chester H. Rowell, retiring editor of the Fresno Morning Republican, appeared in the issue of October 18, 1920, of the "Arar," an Argentine semi-weekly paper published in the city of Fresno, in an editorial written by Editor Leon Lulejian. Translated into English, it is as follows:

"The Fresno Morning Republican is one of the greatest and most popular papers in the state of California. For twenty-four years it has led its readers in political, business and social questions of national importance. It was established by the late Dr. Rowell in the year 1878, as a weekly. In 1887 it became a daily, except Mondays, and continued so up to the year 1906.

"Rowell's earnest efforts and his fine editorials had made the Republican not only an interesting paper, but well cherished by the people. In 1912, after the death of Dr. Rowell, the paper was sold to Mr. Chester Rowell, who became the head and editor of the Republican. Since then his editorials have been admired by the people of the San Joaquin valley, the state of California, and the nation. His editorials, particularly with respect to both foreign and home politics, compelled the readers to think seriously.

"The Republican has played a great role in the affairs of the state, as well as public progress. Mr. Rowell's editorials, right in conclusion, clear in logic, dispassionate without prejudice and forceful in expression, have always proved him to be a far-sighted statesman. Those who were closely following his lead filed the papers day after day to be read and re-read and admired over and over in their conversations of the people. It had become a maxim, 'It is not in the Republican, it is not right.'

"Mr. Chester Rowell always proved that his will-power could never be carried off, bought off. Yellow journalism had no place in the Republican. His editorials were unimpeachable. Mr. Rowell had sold his paper in Oxnard, Cal., so that he might leave for China and the Orient for more important affairs. The 'Arar,' on the day of its organization, its readers who were his admirers, who have known Mr. Rowell by his fame, wishes him his future undertakings. Furthermore, the 'Arar' wishes to press his respects to those who have been associated with Mr. Rowell in the building up of the Republican, and wishes them great success.

"As to the Oxnard Bros., we congratulate them on their highly successful business and wish them success as co-workers with us in the same field and in the same aim, viz: the welfare of the people."

OLIVER

JUST the Plow to do your work, no matter what your work may be.

Some California soils are soft, some are hard, some are one thing at one time and another at some other time. Some are gravelly and some require plows of the highest degree of turning and scoring qualities.

No plow will do good work in this section unless it is made for the soil and purpose intended. The OLIVER LINE shows what can be done by studying soils and the character of the work. Take for instance the "No. 15 Gang" with its great strength, ease of adjustment and remarkable adaptability—or the new "No. 17 Gang," the light and dainty little orchard and vineyard plow—or the hillside, vineyard and other walking and riding plows which stand out so prominently in the OLIVER LINE.

Look them over and you will see that there is an OLIVER for you—and you will want it just as much as we want to sell it to you—and that is saying a great deal. We wish you would come in and let us prove it to you—we can do it.
